8. Handling Multiple Exceptions:

- Write a function called `divide_numbers(a, b)` that attempts to divide two numbers and handles multiple exceptions in separate `except` blocks. The function should handle exceptions such as ZeroDivisionError, ValueError, and TypeError. Additionally, implement error handling for other potential exceptions that may occur during the division operation. Test the function with different types of input and analyze the handled exceptions.